For your desktop

On your desktop many packages are installed, too many to make a list. The easiest way to find out if a particular program is available is by typing in its program name on the command prompt. Alternatively you could make a directory listing of directories where most of the software resides:

- `/usr/bin`

- `/usr/local/bin`

- `/software/sfinx/bin`

or look at the top lever directory

- `/software`

If you are missing a piece of software, just put in a request to <https://helpdesk.strw.leidenuniv.nl> and the computer group will install it on your personal desktop or system wide.
